| General Comments: Good food and good staff in a cozy restaurant. | | | |
| The night started as usual at a local bar to have drinks and prepare for the evening. President Matt Butler was the first to arrive, surprisingly as he was late. Following shortly thereafter was Josh, Nate, and Kenny, in that order. Christian was actually the first but when he did not see anyone, left the bar to come back in time for the meeting. There the small group fellowshiped for a short time at the roof bar overlooking the street below until it was time for the main event. While the president and Nate walked directly to Ajeet, Josh and Kenny went to purchase beverages as this venue is a BYOB establishment. The restaurant was smallish but not crowded and the staff had pulled tables together in preparation for our arrival. Our tables were directly in the middle of the restaurant with a row of tables on each side of us adjacent to the walls. On a busy day, I am not sure if everyone would have fit without getting in the other customers' way, but "if" is not a word that you can stand on so I will reserve any judgement on that front. There are minor complaints such as a wobbly table and not much décor, but the restaurant was adequate for what they wanted to achieve, which to me seemed to be providing good food, whether dining in or carrying out, the latter of which I assume is the bulk of their business although there were people that came in and sat down to eat as well. The bathroom fit the look of the restaurant being clean but minimal. It was a typical take-out restaurant's bathroom. With everyone seated and properly glassed up with the beverage of their choice, a toast to Allan Patten was given and the meeting commenced. The meeting notes are below following the rest of the restaurant review. With the meeting out of the way, the food was served. Although it took some time, once the staff got going, everything came out to the table quickly and fluidly. We were pleased to find that the portion sizes were big, especially the naan which was gargantuan! The spice levels were on point with what was expected. Most members agreed that the food was tasty, delicious even, and Ajeet received a very respectable 8.1 score, mostly due to this reason. The staff was extremely helpful, courteous and was quick to respond when needed. The only problem is that they ran out of printer paper so there was no way to tip them properly. Cash was given but not nearly enough to cover the hospitality. This does not negatively affect the score, but it would have been nice to have had a way to show our appreciation. | | | |
| MEETING NOTES: | | | |
| <ul style="list-style-type: none"> The president, Matt, presented the notion that someone should get the Blazer cleaned. The response was that cleaning the blazer could cause our founder's name to eventually fade away into history. To keep his memory alive, the blazer may be wiped but not dry cleaned. JJ would like for the president to understand parking for upcoming meetings. This is due to him paying to park at a lot while the other team members found free parking. This was even more frustrating because there was no toll for parking on the street in the evening so he could have gotten away with paying only change until that time came and would have had a spot close to the restaurant as well. Josh brought to our attention that Leom wanted to have an extracurricular meeting at 50W (Yes, I just made that word up and yes you may use it). This was taken to a vote and unanimously passed. | | | |

- Leom Holley is given a yellow card for giving a late notice that he would not be able to arrive. He cited something about being a responsible parent or something like that but while he was on doodie duties, JJ was pointed out that one if his children had golf league that night which he gladly missed due to our foodie duties.
- As there were no qualifying presidential candidates, the president asked for a volunteer from the other members and Rob Bosma gladly accepted.

A HUGE THANKS GOES OUT TO ROB BOSMA FOR PICKING UP THE PRESIDENTIAL TORCH FOR OUR NEXT MEETING!
